In 2008, the network decided to adapt its technology and create the DivX Web Player initiative. It was released on April 1st, 2012 and its development started a few months earlier. The software is entirely based on HTML5 standards and it offers a clean look and feel. No pop-ups or annoying advertisements are part of it. The DivX Web Player offers users the ability to play video in two modes. The first option is to play the video in full-screen mode, while the second one is to play it in a separate window. When choosing the second mode, users have the ability to adjust the playback quality by selecting one of the available options. These options include FPS, higher bitrate, post processing and so on. The software also includes an option that allows users to search for DivX content, which is especially useful for those who want to save the clip to their computer and enjoy it later. As mentioned before, it automatically downloads the content to a location of your choice. DivX Web Player: Pros and Cons: DivX Web Player is a good solution for playing DivX content online. The software can be downloaded for free and it has a clean and straightforward interface that will make your user experience easy.
